

This was one of the most special activities of time together. On each table, there were colorful cards with these story prompts. Selected members of the Interfaith Story Circle acted as facilitators for the table sharing and many meaningful stories were told I stopped to listen in at one table where there was at least one person of each of the four faith traditions represented, and found them deeply engrossed in each other's tales. (Gert Johnson)

PROMPTS FOR STORY-SHARING AT TABLES:

- * Which story told by the students today held the most meaning for you?
- * Did any of the students' stories remind you of another story?
- * Is there a story behind your name?
- * Are there any stories that you thought of, or heard, when you were filling in the Human Treasure Hunt squares?
- * Do you have a story about one of your family's religious holiday customs?
- * Do you have a funny or really unusual story about a religious experience?
- * What is your favorite story from your religious tradition?
- * Tell the story of what brought you here today.