

Children at the Well

May 5, 2006

Dear Students and Parents of the first Children at the Well project;

We are very grateful that you were willing to participate in this experiment in interfaith storytelling. We have very much enjoyed working with all of you.

As part of our assessment of the project, for our report to those who funded us, we ask that you please write a letter about your impressions of this experience. We'd like a letter from each student, and one from a parent (or from parents) of each student. Your letters, like the opening application letters that the students wrote, will be part of our report, showing the project's value and how it worked for you, our key participants.

We also have to ask the students to complete another survey now that the project has ended.

You can mail back the letters from student and parent(s) - with the completed survey from the students - in the stamped, self-addressed envelope we've included.

If we are able to continue this project next year, would you be interested in becoming involved again? If so, please let us know in your letters.

Many Thanks,

Gert, Paula, Marni and Mary

You might consider writing about:

What you enjoyed...What surprised you...What you might have liked to have more of...

What things you have learned or at least become aware of...

What you might suggest we do differently next time to improve parts of the project

Please take your time and write about any aspect of the project that you'd like to tell us about. We are grateful for the time and thought we know you will put into this. Thank you again.
